1. The Exfurt-Bindersleben (N 51/J 26) airfield was observed from its southern edge between 9 a.m. and noon on 16 January 1951, in rainy weather. Construction was not started. Sixty laborers were seen in the area of the field. Some were working in the supply dump, while others were engaged in surveying and dismantling destroyed buildings at the field. A large sign read: Bauunion-South, Jena (N 51/J 66) branch office.
2. No aircraft, military motor vehicles, or sentries were seen. The trucks which hauled construction material to the field were civilian vehicles. *
